SUMMER WEIGHT SOLUTIONS

FROM MEMORIAL HERMANN MEMORIAL CITY

“Often we see patients who’ve tried all the diets, exercise programs, and latest health fads with varying short-term results. Bariatric surgery can be the key to losing weight, and keeping it off, for years,” says Tanya Kajese, M.D., a bariatric surgeon affiliated with Memorial Hermann Memorial City Medical Center and UTHealth. “Based on the type of surgery a patient chooses, they can expect to lose anywhere from 50 to 80 percent of their excess body weight.”

There are several factors that impact whether or not a person is a good candidate for weight loss surgery, and Dr. Kajese recommends scheduling a consultation with a bariatric surgeon to learn more about the qualifications and types of surgery available.

To learn more about Memorial Hermann’s surgical weight loss program, NewStart, call 713.448.7827 or go to weightloss.memorialhermann.org.
